- dau of Cornelius & Sarah (Kelsey).¹⁵, p 1267
- Originally, I had Phebe Post as the daughter of Nathan and Hannah Barnes Post. I have been corresponding with Donald [Poste] for a number of years – as has my husband's cousin, Barbara Foote Murphy, of Park Ridge, Ill. I really think it was Donald who corrected me on Phebe! So I changed all my lines, and in a second large book – entered Ruttys, Kelseys, and Willcoxsons. Bill and I went to Killingworth, Ct. – to cemeteries, Town Halls, etc. Now it is Donald who is switching back to Barnes, Stephens, Jordans, etc. Well, I'll go along with him, as being a Poste – he has done a great deal of research. He lived in Buffalo until two years ago and kindly went down to Mayville, N.Y and checked out the cemetery. He looked up a lot about the Hubbards, too.^{16, p 1}

Descendants

- She may have been the Phebe Post who m. Billey Willard of Guilford, but until further evidence can be found, the author has followed Rev. Chapman in placing her as the wife of Caleb Chapman, Jr.^{3, p 375}

- Unfortunately, they left out the word “probably” which I regret, as later on I discovered that Phebe signed a deed as witness with her father, Cornelius, as ‘Phebe Chapman’ (wife of Caleb Chapman). Therefore, I returned to the old theory that she was the Phebe, born to Nathan[4] Post (Abraham[3][2] Stephen[1]) and his first wife Hannah Barnes, b. 10 October 1743 (Saybrook Land Records 2:158), as stated in the 1963 Denison Genealogy.¹²

Research Needed: • When researching the descendants of Abraham[2] Post, I was unfortunately unaware of the work of the late Donald E. Poste (1916-1990) of Buffalo, N. Y., and Newberry, S. C. Mr. Poste spent over fifty years tracing the Connecticut Post family. A copy of his manuscript has been donated to the Connecticut Historical Society and is another valuable resource for descendants of this family.^{3, p 61}

Family Notes: • We do not know where Solomon Hubbard married Hannah Willard. There were Willards living in Catskill, N.Y. at this time. Word has passed down through the family, however, that Hannah was born in Huntington, N.Y. in 1722 and that she witnessed the Battle of Long Island when she was ten years old. She was the daughter of William Willard and according to the 1790 census, a family of Wm. Williard was living in Stratford, Ct. We are not certain about Hannah's parentage, although a member of the Willard Family Association claims she descends from Major Simon(1) Willard, Jonathan(2), Jonathan(3), and William(4). This William had married Phebe Post of Saybrook, Conn. At any rate Solomon and Hannah Hubbard moved north from Durham, Greene County, N.Y. to Broome, Schoharie County, N.Y. in the first years of the nineteenth century.

- Perhaps the Phebe Post who m. at Westbrook, 10 Nov 1766, Billey Willard of Guilford (Joseph Willard and Charles Wilkes Walker, Willard Genealogy, [Boston, Mass., 1915], p 89).^{3, p 226}

- Phebe Post m. Caleb Chapman, 18 Nov 1764

Phebe Chapman d. 3 Apr 1766^{3, p 61,11, p 2}

Research Needed: • Dear Mr. Mills:

This will refer to your query in the current Nutmegger re Phebe (not Phoebe) Post, wife of Billey Willard. I am hastening to reply, as later today I will expect to commence a series of tests which will result in some lengthy hospitalization, and may not be able to answer later on.

In the process of collecting the Descendants of Stephen and Eleanor Post of Saybrook, this Phebe Post has proved to be one of the principal problems encountered, frustrating not only me, but a goodly number of her descendants in the Hubbard family clan especially, also one good researcher in the family of Billey, Jr.

Billey Willard, as you may or may not know, was a descendant of Stephen Post through his daughter Katherine (Post) Chalker, so it appears Billey and his wife were remote cousins.

My research led me to believe that Phebe (Post) Willard, was the Phebe, born to Cornelius[4] Post (Daniel[3] Abraham[2] Stephen[1]) and his first wife, Sarah Kelsey, 12 April 1745 (Saybrook Land Records 4:476) and gave this to the committee revising the Willard Family account in the recently published Guilford Families. Unfortunately, they left out the word "probably" which I regret, as later on I discovered that Phebe signed a deed as witness with her father, Cornelius, as 'Phebe Chapman' (wife of Caleb Chapman).

Therefore, I returned to the old theory that she was the Phebe, born to Nathan[4] Post (Abraham[3][2] Stephen[1]) and his first wife Hannah Barnes, b. 10 October 1743 (Saybrook Land Records 2:158), as stated in the 1963 Denison Genealogy. This is strictly based on probability through the process of elimination, and I have found no documentary proof. Several members of the family have joined me in this research and none to date has found solid proof of her parentage. If you find anything, I would be glad to have it.¹²

- When researching the descendants of Abraham[2] Post, I was unfortunately unaware of the work of the late Donald E. Poste (1916-1990) of Buffalo, N. Y., and Newberry, S. C. Mr. Poste spent over fifty years tracing the Connecticut Post family. A copy of his manuscript has been donated to the Connecticut Historical Society and is another valuable resource for descendants of this family.^{3, p 61}

Spouse: Caleb C. CHAPMAN Jr.

Marriage: 18 Nov 1764, Westbrook, Middlesex, Connecticut^{3, p 374,35,18,36, p 80}

Birth: 13 Feb 1740, Westbrook, Middlesex, Connecticut^{36, p 80}

Nieces and Nephews

Death: 1 Oct 1797, Westbrook, Middlesex, Connecticut³⁶

Flags: Eldest Child

Father: Caleb CHAPMAN (15 Jan 1708-)

Mother: Deborah JONES^{36, p 73}

• He was a prominent man in the parish of West-Brook, in civil and ecclesiastical affairs. He was chosen deacon of the Congregational church, June 22, 1780, and served in that capacity seventeen years and upward, until his decease, which transpired October 1, 1797, when in his fifty-seventh year.^{36, p 80}

Research Needed: • I must admit that the problem of the two Phebe Posts is a genealogical riddle which has yet to be solved. When I wrote the current article in the Register I followed Rev. Frederick W. Chapman's The Chapman Family (Hartford, 1854), p. 80 which assigns the wife of Caleb Chapman, Jr. as Phebe, dau. of Nathan(4) and Hannah (Barnes) Post. This seemed logical to me as Caleb's sister Sarah Chapman married Phebe's brother Christopher Post. Of course, this doesn't mean that Rev. Chapman was necessarily correct. I understand that a copy of Donald E. Poste's manuscript on the Post family was donated to the Connecticut Historical Society, unfortunately after I had completed my own research there on the Posts.³⁷
